Spurs revive plans for 60,000-seat stadium redevelopment

By Dominique Stafford

TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR have resurrected plans to remain in Haringey and rebuild their White Hart Lane stadium after applying for public funding for the Northumberland Development Project.

Spurs have already secured planning permission for a 60,000-capacity ground on the same site as their current home – but they shelved those proposals in the wake of soaring costs and turned their attention instead a move to the Olympic Stadium in Stratford.

However, the Olympic Park Legacy Company's decision to hand the stadium over to West Ham United and the failure of Spurs' legal challenge calling for a review has encouraged the club to reignite interest in the plans for White Hart Lane.

On Friday they submitted a bid to the Regional Growth Fund, which awards cash for projects that directly create jobs through private sector enterprise.

Tottenham chairman Daniel Levy said: "The Northumberland Development Project plans represent sport-led regeneration, anchored by our proposed new stadium.

"It would create thousands of new, private sector jobs, attract millions of pounds of additional expenditure in the local economy and level further private sector investment into the area.

"We are working hard to make the development project scheme viable, enabling us to stay in Tottenham and redevelop our existing site.

"Quite simply, the club is the only private entity looking to invest, on this scale, in the borough and reverse the decline of decades of underinvestment."

If the application to the Regional Growth Fund is successful, the money will be used to help finance a number of aspects of the proposals including station upgrades, employment and training facilities and restoring listed properties.

"The council and club are doing everything possible to make this scheme a reality," said Claire Kober, the leader of Haringey Council, "but the hard fact is that additional public sector financial support is needed to stimulate regeneration in this area.

"Without this it will be difficult for the scheme to provide the catalyst to economic growth and job creation in an area of high unemployment."

However, Tottenham have not given up entirely on their hopes of a move to the Olympic Stadium.

Last week the club revealed that they are going back to the High Court for an oral hearing in the latest development in their bid to secure a judicial review into the decision ruling in West Ham's favour.

Spurs are also facing legal action by West Ham in the row over the use of the stadium after the 2012 Olympic Games.

Eyesore removed as abandoned caravan is cleared from road

By James Lowe

RESIDENTS of a road in Seven Sisters breathed a sigh of relief after an abandoned caravan creating an eyesore and causing misery for drivers was removed.

Residents and councillors had complained about the unsightly mobile home because it was being an obstruction in Clyde Road, but the owner could not be identified.

It was moved for a few days after Haringey Council's enforcement team attached a warning notice to it, only to reappear a few days later at the same spot.

Finally, the caravan was removed by the enforcement team and police on the grounds of being a potentially dangerous obstruction and failing to comply with a notice.

Councillor Nilgun Canver, cabinet member for environment, said: "We can't have abandoned vehicles blocking streets like this. The caravan was causing problems for people living in this area and the owners were given plenty of opportunity to move it."

"Unless someone claims it and

pays any fines associated with it, it will be crushed.

The owners have until Friday to claim the vehicle. After that, it will be crushed if unclaimed. For more information, contact the enforcement team on 020 8489 1000 or email enforcement@haringey.gov.uk

Benefits scam man admits £65,000 fraud

By Jack Ellinas

A HOMEOWNER has been jailed for falsely claiming more than £65,000 in benefits.

Jason White, 36, of St Ann's ward, Tottenham, has been sentenced to a total of 40 months in prison after pleading guilty to four counts of fraud at Wood Green Crown Court last month.

White, who owned his own home, claimed housing and council tax benefits totalling £66,051 over a seven-year period from October 2003 under the pretence he was paying rent to a landlord.

White's scheme fell apart when his mortgage company contacted Haringey Council's housing department about outstanding repayments on his property.

Cabinet member for finance, Cllr Joe Goldberg, said: "White probably thought that he had got away with his crime. This case proves that we will take action against those who make false claims. The benefits system is there to help those most in need."

In addition to his jail sentence, White has been ordered to pay £1,500 prosecution costs and the council has started proceedings to recover the falsely claimed benefits.

Cop John is Met Police's star student

By Jack Ellinas

A POLICE officer has been recognised for his work tackling violent crime in Haringey.

PC John Tully, 27, picked up the student of the year accolade in the Metropolitan Police Service annual awards for 2011 for his efforts to combat gun and knife crime, youth violence and disorder.

When asked why he thought he had received the award, PC Tully said: "I've been involved in quite a few incidents.

"I also seem to get good feedback from members of the public I speak to, especially some of the youngsters and even some of the young gang members.

"They respect me because I try to treat them with respect."

The prize is awarded in recognition of officers who have been seen to develop their practical policing skills in consulting with the public, handling criminal investigations, making arrests and dealing with a variety of incidents.

Speaking of one of his experiences in the line of duty, PC Tully said: "My attention was drawn to a man acting strangely just off Wood Green High Street.

"People were avoiding him because he seemed to have been drinking a lot, but I saw through that and went over to him.

"It turned out he was having an epileptic seizure. We called an ambulance and prepared to perform CPR. Thankfully, he recovered and has since thanked me for possibly saving his life.

"I don't want to take all the credit, though. It really was a great team effort."

PC Tully, who grew up in Islington, has also been involved in incidents including arresting a man with a knife hidden in his trainers and a CS gas canister in his underwear.

He added: "I feel very honoured and privileged to have won this award. I also consider myself very lucky to be working in such a diverse and interesting borough as Haringey."

PC Tully will be representing the Met Police at the Jane's Police Review gala awards in November, along with all the recipients of the Met's awards.

Drive to slash parking costs

COMMUTERS are paying hundreds of pounds a year to park in the driveways of Haringey residents, new figures show.

Statistics released on the yourparkingspace.co.uk website suggest that people who rent out their empty driveways can command up to £1,440 per year.

This is far cheaper than rates in Westminster, £3,504, and in Kensington and Chelsea, £2,976, but is higher than in neighbouring Enfield, where the average annual cost is £1,164.

Website founder Charles Cridland said: "As the credit crunch has bitten, commuters are desperate to cut parking costs and homeowners are keen to make money by renting their drive out.

"We expect to see even more driveways being offered to hard-up commuters. It's a great way to make money from an asset that's going to waste during the day."

Murder bid man guilty

A MAN from Hornsey has admitted trying to kill another man in Finsbury Park last year.

Thomas O'Connell, 25, of Green Lanes, entered a guilty plea at the Old Bailey last week after being charged with attempted murder and will be sentenced on July 19.

Police officers found the victim, 26, by the Manor House entrance to the park on the night of December 28. He was in hospital for several weeks being treated for serious head injuries.

Legal eagles find safe work shelter for their bicycles

By Jack Ellinas

A LEGAL AID firm is helping to reduce carbon emissions by making it easier for staff to cycle to work.

Wilson's Solicitors LLP, of High Road, Tottenham, has opened a state-of-the-art shelter in which staff can store their bikes safely. Hopes are high that this will encourage more and more members of the company's 80-strong workforce to leave their cars at home.

Nilgun Canver, Haringey Council's cabinet member for environment, has praised the move, which is in keeping with the council's "smart travel" ambitions.

Attending the official opening, she said: "This wonderful shelter is testimony to how many staff cycle to work and the encouragement they get from the company. The design is wonderful and complements the building and high street while keeping bicycles safe."

Because Wilson's offices are situated in a Grade II listed Georgian building, the shelter's design had to be changed several times before a suitable solution was found.

Ms Canver hopes the firm's commitment to smart travel will encourage other businesses to follow in their footsteps.

Wilson's senior partner Michael Hanley said: "We try to promote green awareness and strive as a business to reduce our carbon footprint."

Wheel deal: Councillor Nilgun Canver (centre) with members of staff who get on their bikes to get to work

Installing the shelter is a measure of our commitment to sustainable transport and the environment. The bicycle shelter will provide security and shelter from the elements. Bicycle parking is a big issue in London and Legal Eagles is a major factor in influencing the decision of whether or not to cycle to work."

Other ways in which the firm helps staff to choose eco-friendly methods of transport include helping them buy bikes through the government's Bike To Work scheme and providing on-site cycle maintenance every three months to make sure they stay safe.

Otiz and John's family cabaret

"HE'S like that famous Jewish director – you know, the really famous one with the big glasses who plays with his band. The one who looks like Woody Allen. Hang on, it is Woody Allen! That's who he's like," said John Hegley, talking about his partner-in-crime, Otiz Cannelloni.

"What kind of a name is that?" you might well say.

"It's Otiz as named after the dumb side-kick to Lex Luthor in the first Superman movie," added John Korn aka Otiz Cannelloni, "And Cannelloni thanks to my Italian ancestry of the famous flying trapeze artists, The Cannelloni Brothers!" Believing the first part, but having serious doubts about the second, the Johns and I are talking about the forthcoming stand-up double header at Lauderdale House.

The Crouch Ender – that's John Korn – is once again teaming up with John Hegley for their famous Family Cabaret Show this Sunday. The event has become something of a Highgate institution, racking up 30-plus years at Lauderdale thanks to a winning mixture of rhymes, comedy, music and ad-libbing.

"John had done a couple of shows there and then asked if I'd like to get involved," said Korn. "We used to do more grown-up stuff called The Brown Paper Bag Boys but now we concentrate on the kids. That said there is plenty of stuff for adults so you can come on your own if you want."

Choir tunes up for organ restoration

THE past and the present come together to look to the future at Alexandra Palace next Saturday.

The London Welsh Male Voice Choir, dating back to 1902, stands up with the young Kaos Signing Choir for Deaf & Hearing Children to perform a concert in a bid to restore the Grand Organ.

The aim is to restore the organ to its pre-war state – from which the famous EMI recordings and sound samples date. It was heralded as "The finest concert organ in Europe" and the hoped-for restoration will reverse the extensive damage caused during World War One and the great fire of 1980.

The male voice choir was formed by England based Welsh exiles who wished to carry on one of the great cultural traditions of their homeland. Today's choir, now more than 100-strong, maintains these traditions while entertaining audiences across the world.

They team up with the north-London-based Kaos which is the only integrated deaf and hearing children's choir in the United Kingdom. Aimed at children aged

Residents design their own streets

A NEIGHBOURHOOD street-design project is the way forward for tackling traffic congestion, street space and community issues, according to Haringey's environment boss Nilgun Canver.

The DIY Streets project is part of a wider UK initiative by charity Sustrans which aims to bring good design to urban spaces by restricting car use and encouraging walking, cycling and developing play areas.

Applauding the success so far of the project, which is working to redesign the street scene in a neighbourhood south of Turnpike Lane, Ms Canver said: "For the past year, residents have been shaping the new designs by identifying problems they deal with every day in their residential streets, such as high vehicle speeds, poor north-south pedestrian links, lack of community outdoor space and anti-social behaviour. This project truly acknowledges community expertise and engagement, bringing residents together to design sustainable streets that support and serve the community. They may even create a new name for their area to reflect the new landscape."

Residents are now looking at the draft designs to see what will work best in the area.

Ben Addy, Sustrans project officer, added: "The community has really grabbed this opportunity to improve their neighbourhood and with small, creative designs, there are simple ways to give the community space a focus, help slow traffic on residential streets and remind people passing through that this is somewhere where people live, travel in and socialise and where children play."

Tottenham Hale's future takes shape

ADVANCE works on a scheme to improve transport services in the Tottenham Hale area are to be completed by the end of June.

Work along the A10 High Road is close to completion, with upgraded footpaths and lighting and new trees planted, as part of the Mayor Of London's Great Outdoors Programme that aims to bring new life to public spaces.

Plans include removing the one-way system and replace it with two-way traffic are to begin in the autumn of 2012 with the full scheme being completed in 2014. Mayor Of London Boris Johnson said: "The one-way system in Tottenham Hale has been hugely unpopular with local people and I am sure they will be greatly relieved when it has been removed."

The scheme will cost £35million with funding provided by Transport For London, Haringey Council and the Homes And Communities Agency.

Facelift restores glory of historic property

A TOWN centre is enjoying the benefits of a spruce-up after the completion of a series of improvements.

Haringey Council's regeneration programme has helped restore historic buildings and repair shop fronts along the Bruce Grove section of Tottenham High Road thanks to grants and contributions from traders and property owners.

Lost architectural features have been reshaped and repairs have been carried out to roofs, brickwork, chimneys and shop fronts in a project spanning five years during which a £1million investment by the Heritage Lottery fund and £700,000 from English Heritage was matched by the council. Property owners contributed a further £300,000 for improvements to 36 buildings.

Councillor Alan Strickland, Haringey Council's cabinet member for economic development and social inclusion, said: "Some of the historic architecture and shop fronts around Bruce Grove are really elegant and it is great to see them restored to their original appearance."

"The project has lifted the whole area, giving traders, shoppers and residents something special to look at and making Tottenham High Road a really attractive place to visit, live, work and shop."

Roy Cook, whose Dewhurst Of Tottenham butchers shop was one of the properties to benefit from the work, said: "We're delighted with what has been done. It's never easy having builders working around your business but the scaffolding, which was up for the six months while the work was being done, gave us extra protection and it wasn't too disruptive."

"We weren't worse off and now the work is complete it has made a big difference to the general appearance of the area."

SPURS BOOST AS DUO SIGN DEALS

By Dominique Stafford

ENGLAND under-21 international duo Kyle Walker and Danny Rose have both signed new long-term contracts with Tottenham Hotspur.

Right-back Walker, who has put pen to paper on a deal keeping him at White Hart Lane until 2016, shone while on loan with Queens Park Rangers and Aston Villa last season and broke into the full England squad earlier this year.

The 21-year-old, who has signed a contract extension until 2015, first hit the national headlines by scoring a stunning goal against Arsenal on his Premier League debut in April 2010. He spent much of last season on loan at Bristol City.

The duo were both part of England's squad for the recent European Under-21 Championships in Denmark.

Meanwhile, left-back Benoit Assou-Ekotto insists that he is happy to stay at the club despite speculation linking him with a move to Paris St Germain.

Assou-Ekotto was a fixture in the Spurs side for much of last season, and the Cameroon international has indicated that he would rather remain at White Hart Lane than go to the French capital.

"I don't want to move to another club," he said. "If I have a good feeling with my chairman I will stay."

"I don't have a reason to move, even to play in the Champions League because we can do it with Spurs. We have done it once already, so why not again?"

English-born Mexican striker Antonio Pedroza claims he is on the brink of completing a move to Spurs.

The 20-year-old has reached the end of his contract with his current club Jaguares and said: "I can announce that my transfer to Tottenham has been arranged."

"From what I have understood I will take part in pre-season with the first team, and it will depend on me whether they send me on loan to the Championship or if I stay there."

Staying put: Kyle Walker has signed a contract extension at Spurs

Much-improved Skolars snatch another victory

A LAST-GASP drop-goal from Dylan Skee was enough for the London Skolars to record their third successive home win as they beat South Wales Scorpions 27-26 in rugby league's Co-Operative Championship One on Saturday.

The match looked to be heading for a draw when the scores were tied at 26-26 with just two minutes remaining, but Skee held his nerve to slot the ball between the uprights as the Skolars were able to celebrate their best run of form at the New River Stadium for four years.

The Skolars got off to a blistering start with tries from Jaroslaw Obuchowski and Will Coleran – both converted by Skee – seeing them move 12-0 ahead inside ten minutes.

But the Scorpions hit back strongly and had opened up a 22-16 lead by the interval despite Obuchowski's second try.

The visitors continued to hold the advantage for much of the second half, but two tries from Ade Adebisi saw the Skolars level the scores prior to Skee's dramatic late intervention.

Head coach Joe Mbu said: "In the first 20 minutes we really put on the pressure, but we went away from what we needed to do at the end of the half."

"Then we were coming from behind and our execution wasn't as good, but we hung in there and the lads showed we can win tight games."

The Skolars host Oldham at the Twickenham Stoop on Saturday (5pm).
